

CHILDREN'S PARTIES.

SEVERAL OF THEM GIVEN IN THE CITY YESTERDAY.

The Little Ones Have a Merry Time—Two Weddings to Be Celebrated Today—Other Society Notes.

Yesterday was a day of children's parties, for two very pretty affairs gathered together numbers of little folks, although the weather was decidedly suggestive of a cold and whooping cough. The guests, however, came carefully bundled up in wraps, and were delivered at the doors by their nurses, as neatly wrapped up as so many Christmas packages.

Today is a day for weddings, for there are two affairs of much social interest, to occur this afternoon and evening.

The wedding of Mr. William Watkins, Jr., and Miss May Avery, which occurs this evening at the First Methodist church, will be the first large wedding of the season, and one of great social importance. The wedding, from an artistic point of view, will be a very lovely affair, and in regard to the prophecies of prosperity and happiness all who know the bride and groom are perfectly agreed.

The marriage of Mr. W. B. Freeman and Miss May Pledger will be celebrated quietly at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Sam Wilkes, on Peachtree, this afternoon. The many people who knew them wish them the best of happiness in the future which they are sure to possess.

It was a merry crowd of children that collected yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Scott, on Peachtree, to celebrate the tenth birthday of little Miss Belle Scott. The lower floors were all thrown open and brightly illuminated and adorned with flowers. The first drawing room had a large Japanese umbrella, suspended from the ceiling and twined with flowers, while bowls and vases of roses and palms and ferns formed the other decorations.

The room in which a most delicious and beautiful feast was served was beautifully arranged. The table was adorned with fruits and flowers, and a large birthday cake in the center was encircled with ten wax tapers to tell the bright years of the little hostess. She herself, a lovely picture in a cream empire gown, the skirt waisted and finished with gold and silver silk ribbons. Her little friends, Miss Janet Bain and Miss Nellie Dozier, received with her. The former was charming in a little gown of cream striped gauze, the skirt very full over the cream silk petticoat, and the quaint waist made with high-puffed sleeves. Miss Nellie Dozier wore a lovely cream gown trimmed with full ruffles of soft lace and ribbons.

Miss Belle Scott was a very fortunate little girl in receiving all sorts of handsome presents in the form of looks, perfumes and jewelry, and she certainly made an attractive and hospitable hostess, and gave her friends a great deal of pleasure. The favors for the little guests were exquisite—enamel forget-me-not scarf pins with pearl centers, and each little girl went away in the blissful possession of a gold thimble. Wurm's orchestra played a fine music, and there was dancing the whole evening.

Those present were: Misses Janet Bain, Nellie Dozier, Mattie Seales, Zolita Rabin, Douglas Gay, Louise Gay, Mattie Lay, Mary Fuller, Mary Kirke, Sallie Walton, Gussie Wiley, Lillie Woodside, Margaret Porter, Lee Speer, Mina Lou Blunt, Belle Bruner, Alice Barker, Ada Alexander, Mary Mitchell, Florence Fain, Louise Fain, Lillian Fain, Lucy Lowry, Rosa Lowry, Jennie Mohler, Ethel Mobley, Nina Hardin, Helen Crew, Edie Gould, Lucile Colledge, Mary Nickerson, Emma Leila Gramling, Mattie Murray, Carrie Lee Goldsmith, May Curtis, Eva Motes, Daisy Holliday, Messrs. Ervin Dickey, John Gregory, Joe Nutting, Willie Post, J. S. Scrutcher, Willie Sheels, Bob Gramling, Cliff Green, Frank Green, Frank Hancock, Sam Alexander, George Barker, Edmund Bridge, J. H. Dougherty, Willie Murray, Walter Dozier, Lawrence Peel, Robbie Mitchell, Robbie Fuller, Kenneth Bain, Wade Langston, Willie Mabry, John Gramling, Charlie Gramling, Walker Dozier, Sanders Gattis, George Blunt, John Kirke, Fort Scott, Hugh Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gholston gave a beautiful little children's party yesterday afternoon, in honor of the fourth birthday of little Miss Kate Gholston. The party was given at the home of Mrs. Katharine, who made the most lovely pictures with the gold of her hair and blue eyes and tiny complexion intensified by a gown of pale blue silk, the front, from throat to hem, of turquoise blue and the sides and waist were trimmed with velvet roses and worn over a guimpe of white gauze and blue silk gathered full in the throat, with full puffed sleeves.

The elegant house was all thrown open and beautifully arranged. The dining room with its table decorated with crystal and silver bowls of fruits and flowers and brilliantly illuminated with many waxen tapers in crystal chandeliers, was a place of great entertainment and also of great pleasure to the little folks who enjoyed the many delicacies spread before them.

The favors for the girls were dolls and bonbonnières of bonbonnières, and for the boys bonbonnières of bonbonnières. The children, and the merryest kind of a time playing the kongee game, in which Miss Juliet Core won the first prize, a beautiful bagatelle board. After supper they had a fish pond which was a source of great pleasure and amusement. The little hostess received many pretty remembrances and all her guests departed with the brightest memory of her and her birthday party.

Those present were: Misses Nellie Kingsbury, Idolea Austell, Florence Hobbs, Valeria Raulin, Florine Jones, Constance Kibbles, Bessie Tompkins, Janet Tompkins, Belle Nash, Annie Pratt, Hart Wiley, Mary Brent Smith, Juliet Core, Sara Peel, Marion Peel, Laura Payne, Mary Thomas, Mary Thomas, Belle Dubois, Evelyn Austell, Belle Kimball, Masters Clarence Knowles, Brooks Arnold, Gholston, Zachary, Livingston Thompson, Laura Rankin, Winifred Peters, Robert Lowry, Freeman, Willie Ragan, Hugh Spalding, John Fitten, Mitchell King, George Winship, Donald Evans, Albert Thornton, Hamilton Block, Ada Smith, Jr., Karl Austell, James Ragan.

Mrs. DeWitt Clinton Bacon has returned from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stephens have returned from New York and are at the Kimball.

Mrs. Owens, of Marietta, Fla., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Walton on Spring street.

Mrs. E. P. Black has returned from a trip during which she visited many of the large western cities.

Mrs. Martin Ammons is quite ill with typhoid fever at her home on Baker street, and she is hoped that her friends will soon hear that she is convalescing.

A baby born on Peachtree street this week has brought a great deal of happiness to his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson, of Nashville, and to his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Maddox, to whom his coming has given that title.

Mrs. S. L. Mays has issued cards to the wedding of her daughter, Miss Lucy Lee Mays to Mr. E. Brooks Latham. The marriage will occur at St. Phillips, Wednesday afternoon, October 3rd, at 5 o'clock, and will be an important social occasion, as the bride and groom-elect, have many warm friends in Atlanta.

Mr. John M. Holtzberg and family have returned from New Orleans.

Mrs. Belle Dykeman is quite sick at her home on Fairlie street.

Married, at the residence of Mrs. S. D. Hill, No. 6 West Mitchell street, Mr. W. C. Hill, of Griffin, Ga., and Miss Minnie S. Florence, of Greenville, Ga., the Rev. Mr. Weaver, officiating. Mr. Hill is one of the leading merchants of Griffin. Miss Florence is one of the first and oldest families of Greenville.

Miss Marie Hendrix, daughter of Mr. J. C. Hendrix, left yesterday afternoon for Mason, where she will enter the Wesleyan Female college.

The Misses Rosa and Addie Hill, of Natchitoches, La., are visiting Miss Maud Leek, 284 Whitehall street.

Mrs. E. P. Chaffin, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Miss Dora Dunwoody, of Atlanta, will, on Saturday, the 5th of October, on a visit to her parents, Major and Mrs. John Dunwoody, at 1517 1/2 street. Mrs. Chaffin will be accompanied by her friend, Miss Bessie Tanner, one of the fairest daughters of the golden west, who makes this her first visit to the south. Mrs. Chaffin is one of the society leaders of the "Angel City," and both she and Miss Tanner are members of the "C. C. Club" of that place.

LA GRANGE, Ga., September 30.—[Special.]—

Miss Carrie Lee Bridges, of Opelika, is visiting the Misses Wilkinson on Main street.

Mrs. Laird, mother of our postmaster, arrived from Washington, D. C., with her family last week. They are occupying the new residence recently erected by Major Abraham on Hill street.

Professor H. R. Stacey, Jr., has returned from an extended trip to points of interest up north.

Mrs. Toney Thomas, of Atlanta, is the guest of Miss Ella Cary.

Mr. S. S. Pearce, of Rockmart, Ga., is in the city. Mr. Pearce was, up to a recent date, editor and proprietor of The Cedar Rapids, on which paper he did some good work for the democracy of Georgia.

A BAD NEGRO.

For Whom the Police are Looking Very Hard.

Lee Ramsey, a colored citizen of the fourth ward, is wanted by the authorities.

Within the past fortnight he appears to have been somewhat indisposed, and he is now being sought by the city authorities for an aggravated case of disorderly conduct.

Then there is a case of cheating and swindling which is more likely to drop upon his devoted head.

Here is how it all came about.

About four years ago Ramsey married a dusky widow encumbered with a pair of ebony plantains. The widow was also encumbered with a snug property, which outbalanced the aforesaid youthful ebullience.

Domestic infidelity soon began to brew when Ramsey discovered that his better half was disposed to fence her brain to her native land. He is a bricklayer by trade, but he soon began to make little use of his skill. Idleness is the devil's bayonet, and naturally, or rather unnaturally, Ramsey began to look for a more profitable means for becoming possessed of his wife's shekels.

Several weeks ago his scheming culminated, and he proceeded to carry out the plan he had formulated.

To begin with, he so the injured wife states, forged a deed to her property, which is on Hilliard street near the corner of Highland avenue, and which is worth about $1,500, converting the same to himself from his wife. Then with this deed he secured a loan of $75 from Lawyer Walker, whose office is in the Gate City National Bank building.

After doing this, so the woman states, he went to the Atlanta National bank, where she had a bank account of $189, and forging a check in her name, drew out that amount and deposited it in the Merchants' bank to his own credit.

Mrs. Ramsey discovered the whole business yesterday by accident from an old lady who stays in Lawyer Walker's office, this lady, who is a very young having been accused to know why a mortgage on $1,500 worth of property should be given for a $75 loan by Mr. Ramsey.

The woman, who cooks for Colonel Albert Cox, Ramsey troubles before she was married, and which she went before Judge Landrum and swore out a warrant charging Ramsey with forgery.

But he has so far succeeded in evading the officers.

Yesterday, during his wife's absence, Ramsey went to his house on East Main street and found things generally. When the woman returned home she found her household furnishings in a heap of ruins in the middle of the floor.

COUNTY POLICE.

With Sewer Privileges Outside the City Limits.

Already there has been quite a good deal said about the establishment of a system of county limits.

Recently Captain J. M. Wright, while acting chief in Chief Connolly's absence, introduced a paper before the board of police commissioners, asking the taking of such steps as would secure an adequate force of county police.

The board of police commissioners, the proper authorities to take the proper steps, and already the first move has been made.

Mr. L. H. Wilson, of the board of county commissioners, was asked about the matter yesterday.

"Yes," said he, "I am heartily in favor of a force of county police, and also in favor of having the county incorporated for sewer privileges as well as for police purposes. I believe it is the right thing to do, and I believe it will be the best thing for the county to do."

"The county as it is now is now putting the matter in proper shape to come before the next session of the board of police commissioners, and I believe there will be no trouble about it."

There are so many thickly populated suburbs just beyond the line, and I believe the county should give these people protection as far as is possible. Then besides, to incorporate the county for police purposes would greatly aid the police in the city in enforcing the laws.

"And we could then have these petty offenders taken in the records of the county, which would greatly facilitate the ends of justice."

"As to the incorporation of the county for sewer privileges, this is as necessary for police purposes. As the law now is, we have no authority to lay sewers beyond the city limits. This is not only a nuisance, but it is a danger to the people living in the vicinity of the outlets of these sewers. Then it prevents the carrying of sewage to what would really be the proper point for their mouth."

THE FAIRIES' WELL.

To-night this interesting Irish play will be presented by the new company of Mr. W. H. Power, well known in our city by preceding visits with the "Ivy Leaf." The Boston Herald, a paper known for its impartial criticisms, thus noticed the play:

"The new romantic Irish drama called 'The Fairies' Well,' which was written by Mr. Con Murphy, and was presented in this city for the first time last evening, at the Globe theater, by Mr. W. H. Power's company, has been a decided success. The play is one of the best of its class, and it is vastly superior, both in point of character drawing, interest and skill in construction, to dozens of Irish plays which have been given a place on the stage during the past ten years. It was carefully and well acted. Indeed, a better company has not been seen in a play of this character here in many years, and as more than one play has been outlined and given prominence, the individual success of the evening were many. The performance of the company has been a decided success. It was little short of being artistic throughout. It was excellently proportioned, well balanced and in every sense of the word, it was a masterpiece of dramatic skill and handling. The play deserves success."

A Soap Bubble.

The company which is to produce next Thursday, at matinee and night, this light and airy extravaganza, is composed of leading comedians, whose artistic abilities in this line have been given great praise. Among these may be mentioned the favorite and popular artists, Charles W. Young, John Buckland, Frank Allen, Ross O'Neil, Wm. Robbins, Verie Newbridge, Lottie Cliff, David Deacon, and others. The play is a comedy, and the management of Mr. J. H. Dobbin, who has personally directed the tour of the "Soap Bubble" for the past six years.

Mr. J. M. Cooke, managing "Under the Gaslight," was here yesterday, just seven days ahead of his company. He was here last year with Janusville.

A CAMPER—O. M. Mitchell, post, Grand Army of the Republic, in conjunction with the Woman's Relief Corps, will give a delightful campfire at the post headquarters tomorrow evening. These entertainments—campfires—have become very popular, and it is designed to make tomorrow's men and women a large number of members with invited friends, are expected to enjoy it.

Contagious Blood Diseases.

The horror of blood diseases is the fact that they are contagious. Eczema, Sallowness, Itch, and other skin diseases may be contracted by using the same towel, and thus it frequently happens a whole family becomes affected with the disease some member has contracted elsewhere. It is obviously the sacred duty of any one who suffers from a blood disease to rid their system of the impurity. This can be done quickly and easily by using Dr. Bull's Sassafras, the only perfectly safe and complete blood purifier in the world. Its virtue is exclusively its own, and no other medicine can compare with it in its strength and efficiency. Any druggist will give it for you. Test it. Observe its size and test its virtue. —Washington Observer.

The Southern Loan and Banking Company.

Mr. W. L. Ford, who was lately elected president of the new Southern Loan and Banking Company, was asked if it would make any difference in his present business relations.

"None whatever," said he. "My present business relations will continue the same. Mr. Morris will have charge of the office at 27 1/2 Whitehall, and all loans will be subject to the approval of the loan committee."

"What are the prospects for the new company?"

"They are very bright. The stockholders voted to increase the capital from $100,000 to $200,000, and the stock is being taken rapidly. I do not doubt but that the capital at no distant day will be increased to the charter limit—$500,000. As the first installment has not yet been called, the company has not yet begun business on its own account, but we have made arrangements with one of the largest loan companies in the United States, and are now ready to receive applications for loans on central real estate at a low rate of interest. Thus, you see, we will not only use the company's own money to advantage, but will make commissions on loans placed for other corporations and individuals, and we expect to make a regular and satisfactory dividend for the stockholders. People subscribe readily, because the company is so small. When it is all paid they don't miss it, and similar institutions are paying good dividends, and stock worth about par."

NOTICE by the Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta of the holding of an election to determine the question whether bonds shall be issued by said city for the purpose of increasing the water supply of said city:

WHEREAS, the Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta desire to issue two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($250,000) of bonds of said city for the purpose of increasing the water supply of said city, and the assent of the voters of said city being necessary hereunto;

Therefore, it is ordered by the Mayor and General Council of said city, that in accordance with the constitution and laws of said state, and in pursuance of the amendment to the charter of said city authorizing the issue of said bonds, an election shall be held on the 14th day of October, 1890, to determine the question whether said water bonds shall be issued by said city, and that notice to the people (qualified voters of said city) be published in the official gazette of said city, and in a newspaper in which the sheriff's advertisements for said city are published, for the space of thirty days next preceding the day of said election, as provided by law, said bonds to bear interest at the rate of four (4) per centum per annum, and to run not exceeding thirty years from the date thereof, the interest to be paid semi-annually, on the first days of January and July of each year, and the principals of said bonds to be fully paid off within thirty years of the date of the issuance thereof;

If the issue of said water bonds is voted by the voters of said city, then, and before the proposed debt is incurred, an ordinance or ordinances shall be passed providing for the sale and issue thereof, and making provision at the same time for the assessment of said bonds to the property of said city, and the amount to pay the principal and interest of said debt within thirty years from the date of incurring said indebtedness.

But this shall not operate to increase the annual taxes on real estate or personal property beyond a charter rate of one and one-half (1 1/2) per cent per annum.

At said election the voters shall have printed and written ballots for "For Water Bonds" and "Against Water Bonds."

Said election shall be held at municipal elections in this city, and shall be conducted by the Mayor, and in accordance with Sections 26 to 28 of the Code of the City of Georgia.

Approved September 5, 1890.

JOHN T. GLENN, Mayor.

I certify that the foregoing preamble and ordinance were adopted by the Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta on September 1, 1890, and entered in the official records of said city on September 4, 1890, and approved by the Mayor of said city September 5, 1890.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 1, 1890.

Today's Election.

The indications are that the voters of Georgia will have to contend with a wet day.

A full vote will no doubt be polled, however, and we see no reason why Georgia's good old democratic majority, approximating 100,000, should not be rolled up today, as usual.

A governor and statehouse officers are to be elected, and a new general assembly chosen. Besides these, the voters of the state are to pass upon two amendments to the constitution, and in this connection we urge the adoption of both.

One of the amendments authorizes the legislature to pension the widows of Confederate veterans, provided they have remained unmarried.

The other amendment provides that bills before the legislature shall be read the second time by caption only. As it now stands a bill has to be read three times in each house before it can become a law. Much time is thus wasted, without any good being accomplished, which the adoption of the above amendment will save.

As to the contest in Fulton county, and in this senatorial district, the only point at issue is the race for the state senatorship. The CONSTITUTION has attempted to make it plain that Mr. Venable is clearly the standard bearer of the party, and that as such he should have the support of the democrats of the district.

It is important that there should be a full turnout of voters today. It takes very little trouble to exercise the privilege of suffrage, and every voter should take enough time to see that his ballot is deposited at his precinct. It is only a question of a few minutes, and the necessity for a full vote is such that the citizens of Atlanta cannot afford to stay away from the polls.

The Cigarette Habit.

The last session of the Georgia legislature passed a law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes and cigarette tobacco to minors, but the law does not seem to have diminished the sales to any perceptible extent. About as many boys are seen upon the streets of Atlanta smoking cigarettes as there were before the law was enacted, and cigarette dealers in Savannah say that their sales have increased. It is stated by some physicians that the cigarette habit is as hard to break off as the opium or morphine habit; in fact, a great many believe that some cigarettes are adulterated with opium so as to increase the smoker's desire for them, and to fasten the habit upon him so that he can not break it off.

Notwithstanding the numerous warnings that have been given upon this subject, and the many young lives that have been wrecked—some becoming raving maniacs and others falling untimely graves—the warnings go unheeded and thoughtless boys continue to puff the cigarette.

Another, and most probably a potent factor in opposition to the cigarette habit, has appeared that may open the eyes of the youngsters and cause them to take a more serious view of the practice than they have hitherto done.

In a recent issue of The West Point Press the editor writes: "We know of a bright boy who could get a good situation, and the only thing that is in his way is a cigarette."

Upon the same line a Savannah paper relates the following incident: Boys who smoke cigarettes should note the following incident: At a prominent business house the other day a boy probably thirteen years of age stepped in and made application for a position. The proprietor looked at the boy and gave him a negative answer. The boy, who was smoking a cigarette, walked to the door and started out, when the business man called him back, inquired his name and then said to him: "Young man, show me as an elder to give you some advice. The next time you want a position do not go into a house smoking one of those things. When you are as old as I am you will appreciate the advice I give you." After the boy had retired the business man said to a by-stander: "I need several boys and I like that one's face, but I would not employ any boy who smokes those things."

Will the boys of the country jeopardize their chances of getting honest employment for the sake of a cigarette, or will they renounce the habit and try to make honorable and self-sustaining citizens of themselves?

Reasoning Together.

There is a general belief that corporations are soulless, and it must be confessed that many of them have given evidence of an arrogance and obduracy on certain occasions which would seem to warrant the belief. But there are exceptions to all rules. Like individuals, corporations have rights; but some of them do not claim a monopoly on this line; they are willing to accord rights to others, and to acknowledge wrong when it is proved against them.

The train conductors of the great Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company were recently considering the advisability of going on a strike; they had certain grievances; they wanted certain changes made; they were overworked, and they felt that the company was not treating them fairly in many respects.

But they did not act hastily; they went before the officers of the system and talked the matter over with them; they presented facts to show that they were in the right; the officers entertained them kindly, stated their side of the case, compared notes with their employees, and made the changes they desired. The conductors returned to their duties, the trains went out on time, and what might have been a serious strike was averted.

In this case employers and employees reasoned out their differences in the space of a few hours. The latter did not march in a body before the former and make an uncompromising demand for a change; and on the other hand, the railway officials did not receive them haughtily, and refuse them that respectful consideration which, as employees, was their due. They met each other half way, shook hands, talked the matter over and came to a settlement.

Perhaps if a little more judgment were used on both sides, strikes that result seriously might be averted. It is understood that other employees of this road, encouraged by the success of the conductors, have decided to ask for certain needed changes also, and that the officers of the road have set a day on which their case will be heard, and there is no doubt but that it will have a happy termination.

There seems to be a moral in this story, which might be read and pondered with profit.

Northern and Southern Missions.

Mr. Henry Watterson, editor of The Courier-Journal, has been recently addressing the reform club of Boston, and his remarks are significant if not important. Mr. Watterson is one of the few men of his time who look beneath the surface of things—who perceive the drift and tendency of affairs—and who looks at matters in a large and imaginative way. What he says is not only interesting on its own account, but because of the individuality which he manages to inject into it.

But the fact that Mr. Watterson, or any other southern man, is called to take the platform at the north is something more than significant. It probably has a deeper meaning than that which is commonly attached to it. What sort of a condescension is it that caused Mr. Grady to be invited to speak at the north, or that causes Mr. Watterson to appear before the reform club of Boston? There is something or other at the bottom of it.

Mr. Watterson's talk is all that could be expected of a level-headed, large-minded man. It is manly and independent, a crushing and unanswerable characterization of the political situation; but after all, what does it amount to? The presence of Mr. Watterson in Boston is interpreted to be an apology for the south, a vague and nameless apology, it is true, but yet an apology. We observe that northern orators are making speeches or delivering lectures in the south, and the fact is significant.

What Mr. Watterson says of the unity of the people is true enough, and the point has been made before; but we have not seen it dwelt on or magnified in any northern newspaper. That we are one race and one people seems to be certain—that we have one destiny seems to be equally certain; but the reply to Mr. Watterson's speech—the inevitable suggestion that seems to lift off, as it were, the attitude of the north, makes its appearance in The Springfield Republican, a newspaper that is friendly in a general way to the south.

The Republican says that Mr. Watterson's address is very good capital, indeed—but that the whole situation may be summed up in the remark that those who suppress negro votes have no right to present themselves before the northern public with any expectation of receiving sympathy. Our own impression is now, and has been for some years, that the south would do well to be on the defensive than it has been; that it would become us to be less sensitive and thin-skinned.

We believe it will be time enough for southern orators and lecturers to make a parade at the north and explain our position with regard to the negro problem, when northern public men come to the south and explain or attempt to explain, the attitude of their people toward the negroes in their section—the negroes whom they crowd out of all employment except the most menial. We are not sure that the matter needs any explanation; we do not, for instance, insist that northern orators should make their way hither for the sole purpose of explaining why the negroes of the south are compelled to rush around like the dogs of Constantinople, hunting for a bone.

Nevertheless, if the north is in earnest; if it loves the negroes as it pretends; if it believes in justice, if it is of the opinion that a man, white or colored, should live by the sweat of his brow and the cunning of his hand, its orators should be in all parts of the south telling us why it is that the negroes of the north have no opportunity to earn their living, while all the avenues are open to the negro men and women of the south.

To discuss this subject, we invite the great statesmen of the north to visit us at their leisure and make such remarks as will bear repetition in the newspapers. On this subject, Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, might make a great point—and if he would tell the naked truth about it, it would be the event of his life.

"A Celebrated Case."

The trial of Birchall for the murder of young Benwell, which has just ended with a verdict of "guilty," will go on record as one of the most famous in criminal history.

From first to last the trial was one of absorbing interest, and its progress was eagerly watched by the people of two continents. The summoning and retention of witnesses, and indeed, the whole conduct of the case, entailed an enormous expense upon the crown, and the case on both sides was handled in a masterful manner.

With the circumstances of the murder and the incidents of the trial the public is already familiar, so that it may be hardly necessary to recite them here. This man, Birchall, who is now under sentence of death, resided in Canada. He was a man of small means, if any, and, as was brought out in the trial, without visible means of support. He crossed the ocean to secure his victim, and by false representations lured him to Canada. Arrived in that country, Birchall knew that his deception must become apparent; the young man had money which he was to invest with Birchall in a farm which did not exist. Birchall was desperate; he needed money; he had deceived Benwell, and was losing his hold upon him; they started out together on the 17th of February last, ostensibly to investigate property in which Birchall was interested; but only one of them returned, and that one was Birchall.

Several days after this journey on which the two men went the body of Benwell was found embedded in the ice and snow of a dismal swamp, where he had been shot to death. He was a stranger in the country, and no one knew him; but lest his identity should be discovered, the murderer took the precaution to cut the name of his victim from the linen that he wore, and thus the dead man was found.

They would not have known his name but for a cigar holder which the murderer had overlooked, and which was found by his victim's side. Birchall was arrested; he had been seen with Benwell by a host of witnesses—seen with him on the day of the murder near the spot where the body was found. Fully fifty witnesses identified him positively in court; it was clear from the very first that Birchall had murdered his friend.

But what surprised one most in this trial was the coolness of the prisoner. He never lost his composure, even when witnesses, like the ghosts in the play, arose and pointed the accusing finger at him; with the utmost indifference he came and went—the object of all eyes; while witnesses were fixing the guilt of Benwell's murder upon him he leaned back sullenly in the prisoner's dock and sketched their faces. To the last he was firm and composed; but his indifference was not that of an innocent man; his idea was to brave his way to an acquittal; but the evidence, though circumstantial, was overwhelmingly against him, and the verdict which demands his life is a just one, which no man will question.

The story antedating this murder and its terrible sequel is replete with interest. Were Poe alive he could weave a thrilling romance from it. But it might point a moral, as well as furnish the plot for a tale. It is an awful witness to the truth of the adage—"Murder will out."

For all Birchall's precautions in covering up his crime, a name upon a cigar-holder, which was buried in the snow, gleamed like a ray of light from his icy bed and furnished a clue which was the most important factor in his conviction.

There's no security for the murderer; the pools run dry and reveal his victim's face; the winds whirl the leaves from the body hidden in the heart of the woods; the earth trembles and rends the mound under which the murdered lies, and there is no safe shelter for the secret murderer.

Aye, though he's buried in a cave
And trodden down with stones,
And years have rotted off his flesh,
The world will see his bones!

Atlanta's Hospitality. It exists not in name alone, but it is a living reality. It has stood every test. It has never been found wanting.

So, too, with the hospitality of Atlanta—the hearty welcome of her people to the visitor within her gates.

For several days past the women at the head of the local unions of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union have been engaged in a canvass of the city with a view to finding in the homes of our people accommodations for the delegates and visitors to the national convention of that great temperance society which is to be held here in November. We do not know to what extent these efforts have been successful, but there can be no doubt of their ultimate success.

These women come to Atlanta upon the hearty invitation of the state and city governments, and of the citizens generally, and they will be welcome visitors. They are noble women, earnest workers in a good cause, and the homes of our people will doubtless be thrown open to them during their stay in Atlanta.

This should be the case, and it will be, and those who attend the convention in Atlanta will have reason to remember it as one of the pleasantest in the history of the union.

CLINTON J. EDDY, who, some years ago, married Rose Coglian, an actress, has wearied of his hargrain and another stage divorce is chronicled.

THE FACT that E. Burd Grubb has been made minister to Spain shows that there is not only nothing in a name, but next to nothing in side-whiskers. The fact that we have had no minister to Spain for some time and need none shows that E. Burd Grubb is where he belongs.

It is said that the typewriter girl refuses to marry. No doubt this fact accounts for the hiatus in Mr. Robert P. Porter's census returns.

ACCORDING to statistics, there are 80,000 stammerers in Germany. If they could be got together in one place and bribed to make an effort to speak their own language we should then truly understand the beauties of German for the first time.

IF MR. WINDOM were to make an affidavit no doubt he would deny the existence of a bond syndicate. This is mostly the way with men who fail to keep their eyes open. Yet it is not expected that a republican in charge of the people's money should keep his eyes open.

It is now generally conceded that Mr. Chaney Dewey is by all odds the biggest republican at the north. The reason of this seems to be that he has no reciprocity ideas. He is a republican for revenue only.

DELAWARE, republican candidate for governor, is openly charged by Senator Emery with being a "briber, perjurer and forger." Quay, who is his backer, stands bravely by a thief and embezzler. "The Society for the Encouragement of Felony" is the latest name for the republican party of Pennsylvania.

WITH THE GEORGIA EDITORS.

The New South of Ringgold, under the management of W. Trox Bankston and A. J. Banks, continues to improve with every issue. The paper outside has been discarded and the paper is now a home print, well filled with spicy local and well written editorials. The subscription list has rapidly increased and the paper shows signs of prosperity. The proprietors propose to make The New South the leading paper of north Georgia.

On Sunday last a special edition of The Columbus Evening Ledger was published. It was finely illustrated, while its typographical execution was superb. The make-up of the paper was excellent, and the enterprise displayed by the publishers reflects much credit upon them. We are glad to know that Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Byington are making The Ledger a success.

Editor Randall, of The LaGrange Graphic, has been presented with a mass of new sweet potatoes by an admiring subscriber. Such marks of esteem will draw the subscriber close to the editor's breast.

STATE POLITICS.

There are two candidates for the city judgeship in Savannah. Hon. William H. Hudson and Mr. A. H. Macdonell. The members of the Savannah bar are nearly equally divided in their support of the two candidates.

McBride Lodge No. 1288, of Screven county, has passed a resolution endorsing Norwood for the Senate.

Pulaski county has three negro candidates in the field. Gabe Miller wants to go to the senate; his brother Jack wants to serve as representative in the legislature, and their brother-in-law, Sam Lee, wants to be coroner.

State School Commissioner Hook will address the citizens of Milton county at Alpharetta, on October 7th.

Milton Democrats: They call themselves "independent democrats" in the ninth, "Jeffersonian democrats" in the seventh and "straightout democrats" in Hall county.

Dr. W. H. Felton has an appointment to speak at Ringgold Thursday, October 2d.

The primary election in Muscogee county last Saturday resulted as follows: J. C. Cook, clerk; J. G. Burdick, Davis A. Andrews, tax collector; F. G. Wilkins, receiver; Oliver P. Poe, treasurer; Thomas C. Robinson, coroner; R. H. Hudson, surveyor.

A republican mass meeting in Americus on Saturday last was broken up by having a hat passed around for campaign purposes.

LaGrange Graphic: "The Spectra Alliance is going to watch and see if an insubordinate legislature will pass a dog law. And we are all going to watch. If they will commence by passing such a law, then every man in camp will begin throwing his hat, and hurrahing for the Alliance. Let us wait and see."

Rome Tribune: "When Candidate Everett makes a speech, The Tribune will publish it. From The Philadelphia Press."

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION notes the fact that there is a general movement in many southern cities towards pensioning ex-Confederate soldiers. This is praiseworthy and should be encouraged. It is not creditable to the south that so many of its veterans are today in want while costly money is sent to the lost cause and the southern soil so frequently, justice always comes before sentiment, and bread for the mouth of the deserving soldier should take precedence of shafts to commemorate the dead. The south is growing rich, a fact in which the whole country rejoices, and it is perfectly able to care for those who fought for it and are now in want.

GENERAL GEORGIA NEWS.

The cotton fields of Newton county are still white with the unpickerd staple.

The grading of the branch road from near Newborn, on the New Georgia and Atlantic Railroad to Social Circle, is progressing quite rapidly.

Miss Emma Young, of Greene county, shot and killed a mad dog at her home a few days ago.

The grading of the new railroad from Covington to Machen will soon be completed.

Referring to the cotton crop The Savannah Morning News says: "Cotton is in a bad way, and unfavorable weather has continued through the week all over the cotton belt. Rain has fallen in all the districts of the south, and in the south Atlantic states the precipitation has been very great. In fact, in the territory adjacent to Savannah it has been a regular deluge. The continued rains have prevented cotton picking, and a great deal of matured cotton has been left lying on the ground, so that future receipts will consist largely of storm-beaten, dirty and discolored cotton. It is now estimated that fully five-eighths of the entire crop will be of low-grade cottons."

Mr. H. H. Woodruff has been appointed agent and yardmaster of the Central railroad at Wadley.

Quite a number of winter visitors are already arriving at Thomaston.

There are four murderers confined in Bibb county jail.

The Lumpkin Independent says the roads and fields are worse torn up by recent rains than at any time during several years past.

Lumpkin Independent: The floods and cloudbursts of this week have damaged the cotton crop greatly. Much of it was knocked out and beaten into the ground, while the lower bolls are now open and labor cannot be had to gather it.

Lumpkin Independent: Last Tuesday night a heavy rain passed over this section of the county, with considerable thunder and lightning attending it. During the passing of the storm lightning struck a tree in the lot of Mr. B. H. Worrell, who lives about ten miles south of Lumpkin. Fourteen fine hogs belonging to Mr. Worrell were lying under the tree, and every one of them was killed.

their cotton in bales because they are unable to get cotton baling.

The Putnam county fair opens today, and will continue four days. Over fifty horses have been entered for the races.

It is said that a dummy line will be built from Ringgold via Cherokee Springs to Catoosa.

The farmers of Catoosa county have bought more machinery during the past season than ever before.

Mrs. Charles Williams, of Tunnel Hill, gave birth to a son last Wednesday that weighed just one and three-quarter pounds. The child was perfectly formed, but its fingers were no larger than broom straws and its nose no larger than a wart. The infant looked sprightly and intelligent, lived a couple of days and then died.

Lumpkin Independent: Mr. J. H. Hurley, who lives about five miles west of Lumpkin, has probably as fine a field of cotton as can be found in the county or in the state. He has already gathered 2,500 pounds to the acre from it, and will get between 500 or 1,000 more to the acre from it. Stewart county farmers know how to make it to perfection.

INGRATITUDE TO FRIENDS.

A Review of Colonel T. Warren Akin, of Bartow.

AT HOME, BARTOW COUNTY, GA., September 23.—Editor Atlanta Constitution: It is a notable fact that Colonel T. Warren Akin, of this county, has conducted the congressional contest in this district as director general, or "stage manager," for Hon. R. M. Everett. It is a free country, and nobody objects, but the readers of The CONSTITUTION, in other parts of the state, should have a statement of facts to show why Colonel T. Warren is thus conducting himself, or he might be accorded more attention than the matter deserves. In Dr. Felton's absence, I desire to place on record as well as possible, a general information, in a perfectly candid and dispassionate way. Perhaps no other person than Dr. Felton or myself is able to do so, therefore I ask space in your columns for a brief explanation of this subject. Colonel T. Warren was a ferocious opponent in the Lester-Felton campaign. He wrote a series of bitter articles in The CONSTITUTION over the signature of "Citizens," during that campaign he wrote a letter to Hon. A. H. Stephens, asking a reply for publication, to injure Dr. Felton. The reply he refused to publish. That reply is in my hands today—presented by Colonel T. Warren, in later years. Long a few lines to show its tenor. Under date of August 24, 1878, addressed to T. Warren Akin, Cartersville, Ga. Mr. Stephens wrote: "I have no hesitancy in saying that if I were in the seventh district, I would not support Dr. Felton in the present contest. This I should do, because of his acknowledged ability, unquestioned integrity and spotless character, with that experience in public affairs at Washington, which enables him to render more effective service to his constituents than any man could do, however eminent his virtues and abilities might be. My advice to his constituents, including the county of Bartow, as well as all who have no object in politics but good government, would be to say to him at the polls: 'Well done, good and faithful servant.' It is in politics as in most other matters, it is always well to let well enough alone. Yours truly,"

ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS.

Colonel T. Warren suppressed the letter, but under date of September 7, 1883, five years later, he addressed the following to Dr. Felton, which here copy: CARTERSVILLE, September 7, 1883.—Dear Sir: I now inclose Stephens' letter. In it is the remarkable inconsistency of his last campaign grows stranger. It is any wonder that he should have been so much abused? He was consistent in defeat, and the organized democrats of the seventh.

When the state sanctioned inconsistency and a great name sanctified ingratitude, then will Mr. Stephens' example in that campaign be worth the emulation of succeeding generations. For the sake of those yet to follow it is to be hoped that Mr. Stephens' biographers will not forget to head this chapter, "Ingratitude to His Friends." Very truly,

Dr. W. H. Felton, Cartersville, Ga.

Now for the point I desire to make. In last Sunday's CONSTITUTION, I see a dispatch from Rome, September 27th, in these words: "Mr. T. Warren Akin spoke of Felton's record, his speech in Augusta, a few years ago, and an article that appeared in The Chicago Tribune about the same time, and other charges against Dr. Felton. The article in The Chicago Tribune appeared in 1879, eleven years ago. The speech in Augusta was delivered in January, 1882, nearly nine years ago, and Mr. Akin's charge of 'ingratitude' was made seven years ago. Remember the dates."

All persons acquainted with the Bacon-Gordon contest are aware that Colonel T. Warren was a Bacon supporter. When the people of Bartow met to send delegates to Atlanta in July 1880, Colonel T. Warren introduced Dr. Felton in these words as reported by The CONSTITUTION:

"Dr. Felton began an address to his followers which he continued until 1 o'clock. Colonel T. Warren Akin introduced the doctor, speaking feelingly of the manner in which The CONSTITUTION had abused him, and reminded the people time and again that the issue was not between Gordon and Bacon, but between The CONSTITUTION and Dr. Felton."

You will find the resolution introduced also by Colonel T. Warren, in four files, pledging support to such candidates as "were fairly nominated and are proper persons for the office," and no others.

You feel interested to know, of course, why Colonel Akin was so devoted to 1880, after his ferocity in 1878. You would like to inquire, why he condemned the Augusta speech and Chicago article in 1880, to revive his antagonism in this good year 1890? In the fewest possible words I will reply: He was running for the legislature in this county in the year 1880, and wanted help!

He praised Dr. Felton all over the county—from the state of Alabama—from Euharrie to Swamp creek. He was a Felton man from head to foot. Dr. Felton made a speech in Augusta four years before—had an article in a Chicago paper seven years before, but he didn't tear his hair about them as he is now doing at Rome and other places.

When the state agricultural convention met in Cartersville, August, 1880, the members present will remember Colonel T. Warren's introduction of Dr. Felton. Look in your paper, August 11th, and read the words which Dr. Felton said in a tribute to the county of Bartow, closing by eloquently introducing Dr. Felton. He did not fail in the introduction of Dr. Felton, and he was not a "Bacon supporter" and called Dr. Felton the "cyclonic terror of the seventh."

Now, Messrs. Editors, what say you to Colonel T. Warren's opposition now? If he was consistent in refusing to publish Mr. Stephens' advice in 1878, was he consistent in the "small how at organized democrats," in 1880? If Dr. Felton was unworthy in 1879 and 1880, as Colonel Akin would express the

VENABLE'S BIG RALLY

AT THE COURTHOUSE LAST NIGHT—A LARGE CROWD.

Hon. C. D. Hill, Colonel Albert Cox, Captain W. D. Ellis and Others Address the Meeting With Mr. Venable.

The ugly, soaking rain, the muddy, slushy streets and the black, thick clouds were not sufficient to keep the voters away from the big Venable rally, at the county courthouse last night.

Seven hundred people were present.

And the Zouave band.

As the clock was striking 8, Mr. Fulton Colville announced the stand, saying:

"I move that Mr. H. H. Cabanis take the chair."

Mr. Cabanis responded to the call, and in a neat, short speech, accepted.

"Now I desire," said he, "to introduce as the first speaker a gentleman whom you all know and one whom you are always glad to hear. I refer to Hon. C. D. Hill."

Mr. Hill went upon the stage amid great applause.

"Last night," he began, "I was subjected to thirteen temptations. Twelve were at the opera house—beautiful women, surrounded by the glare of bright stage lights and dazzling costumes. The thirteenth was here in the courthouse."

It was a great conflict with me to decide which I should take in. I finally came here, and I must tell you that I witnessed a roaring farce, and an undiluted comedy.

Todd, Murphy and Arnold being the stars—the two end men and the middle man.

"Then, too, my friend Freisleben was here. I must not forget him."

"I have attended three meetings of the thirty-fifth senatorial district, and I saw here last night only a rehearsal of those meetings. The only variations were the hard things Murphy said about Mr. Thomas, Mr. Venable, Mr. Hill and Mr. Kiser. He said that Mr. Thomas was interested in the proceedings because he was a candidate for city solicitor."

"As to that I have only to say that if he is appointed to that honorable position by Governor Norther, he will make a good officer, and I see no reason why an honorable gentleman like he should not aspire to any office in the gift of the people."

"To provoke an applause, Murphy compared Mr. Thomas to Tom Reed, but the truth is, Murphy made most of the applause, which came by pounding on the desk."

Mr. Hill then gave an imitation of Mr. Murphy's work as he beat upon the desk with a stick.

"Reed has made himself," continued Mr. Hill, "odious to the south, but Mr. Thomas did not do one thing Mr. Reed has done. When Fulton gave six votes for Cooper and Cobb gave four for Perkins and Clayton refused to vote Mr. Thomas declared there was no election. Reed would have seated Cooper, and rightly too. In my opinion Mr. Thomas's rulings were all correct. One of Murphy's greatest objections to Mr. Thomas was that he ordered the election for permanent chairman instead of temporary chairman. What would have been the difference, I ask you? None. The vote would have been the same."

"One of the remarkable features of the campaign is the declaration of Murphy and Arnold that Mr. Venable is an independent candidate and that Mr. Todd is the regular nominee."

"Now Murphy has been a public man—a little too public. And he talks about Reed! What made Reed so infamous as Murphy says? His devotion to his party. What of Murphy's devotion? In 1886 he was an elector for Fisk against Cleveland. Then does it lie in his mouth to talk about democracy? Was Cleveland or Fisk the democratic nominee?"

"I think too that I can prove that the Cobb and Clayton county delegations were here to nominate Todd, or break up the convention. After over 1,000 ballots had been taken, Dr. Sewell, of Cobb, arose to a personal privilege point—I was here and heard it all. I thought then that something was coming."

"It was coming, too."

"But what was it?"

"Outside of the delegates and a few worn-out observers, everybody had gone, too, except Murphy, Arnold and Freisleben. They flitted about from delegate to delegate. Presently Mr. Tailferro came in, and then the Cobb and Clayton delegates made that memorable split."

"Of that split and the subsequent work you all know."

"Now as to the Cobb delegation. I desire to say a word. I have it from good authority that Dr. Sewell, one of that delegation, was refused the right to vote at a democratic primary in that county because he was not a democrat."

"Then outside of the delegations from Cobb and Clayton the state-at-large had delegations here. That delegation was composed of Arnold, Murphy and Freisleben."

"When everybody was tired Charley Norther ordered the sandwiches, and when they came in the eyes of the Cobb and Clayton delegates opened wide, and their mouths began to water. They were hungry, and Charley Norther passed the food around."

"Here Mr. Hill painted a life-like picture of a hungry man reaching for something to eat."

"But just before," said Mr. Hill, "he reached it Murphy bade him stop."

"He stopped, too, but finally he took the sandwich and ate it. So did others. And they all enjoyed the ham and bread."

"They bring up against Mr. Venable that charter for a railroad between Atlanta and Stone Mountain. Mr. Venable secured that to break up the monopoly of the Georgia railroad. They say the charter is worth $50,000, and I tell you that Mr. Venable will give it to any one who will build the road."

Mr. Hill spoke of Mr. Venable's life as a citizen and officer of Fulton county, and paid him tribute after tribute which aroused the audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. He spoke of the money Mr. Murphy had hurled upon Mr. Clark Howell, and said that it was caused simply by Mr. Howell's fidelity to his friends and his great sense of what was right."

"Mr. Todd in his speech last night," continued Mr. Hill, "said that he wouldn't turn the grindstone, and intimated that Bill Venable would. I say the man who makes such an assertion about Bill Venable is a wicked, graceless, godless slanderer."

Mr. Hill then spoke of Mr. Todd's reference to the ability of newspaper men to find him, and referring to Mr. Todd's story about the attempted interview, in which the question about his voting for Sam Small was raised, presented the following affidavit:

Georgia, Fulton County.—In person came before me, A. F. Coole, who on oath says, that he visited Mr. Todd, at Hapeville, Ga., Clayton county, and in that interview, in the presence of Mr. A. J. Miller, he, the said Todd, stated that he could not remember whether he voted for Frank P. Rice, the democratic nominee, or Mr. Samuel W. Small, the independent candidate for senator. Sworn to and subscribed before me this September 29, 1896.

A. F. COOLE, Notary Public, Fulton County, Ga.

Mr. Hill in his own happy, peculiar way commented on that paper and aroused the house to great enthusiasm.

Mr. Hill presented the card in which "Todd Supporters" referred to the bill to change the paying laws, and showed that in no way was Mr. Venable responsible for it.

In conclusion he told of Mr. Venable's life from boyhood to date. His language was fluent and captivating and at times the house went wild. The very mention of the name caused cheer after cheer to go up.

The speech was a most excellent one, and from beginning to end, Mr. Hill held the undivided attention of his audience. He urged every one to turn out and vote for Mr. Venable. Mr. Cabanis then introduced Mr. Venable.

"I have lived among you," he began, "all my life, and I know you and you know me. Thirty-eight years ago I was born within a stone's throw of this building, and since then I have walked and worked with you all. But never before this campaign have I been charged with doing any wrong. I won't stoop to charge any man with doing wrong. I can't say anything against my opponent because I don't know anything about him."

"Neither do we," yelled a chorus in the crowd.

"You all know as well as I do that no amendment to Atlanta's charter can be secured without thirty days' advertising in the papers. Now, they attack me about that paying bill. I tell you that I knew nothing of it until the bill had gone through the city council as usual and come to me. Then, when I realized what it was I declined to have anything to do with it. The bill went to Mr. Howell, and was passed. If any man in Atlanta wanted to know anything about the bill why didn't he read the papers. Now, friends, to prove what I say I will read a letter which I have just received, and which came to me voluntarily."

Hon. W. H. VENABLE, CITY—I read it with reference to a criticism made on you in a communication published in yesterday morning's CONSTITUTION on the subject of the paying bill referred to therein, that I am quite sure that you had no agency in the origin or recommendation of the bill, but that the same amendment desired to the paying law."

This I state without any request from you, but as a man of justice and equity, I feel it my duty to make any use of it that you may desire. My knowledge of the facts was by reason of my duty to prepare for each amendment which was recommended by the city government to the charter of the city. Very respectfully,

JOHN B. GOODWIN.

"Never in my life," continued Mr. Venable, "have I proven recreant to any trust reposed in me by the city, county or state. I have not been by the city, county or state for the railroad, I say I have not only offered to give it but to add $5,000 to any corporation that will build the road."

"I secured the Technological school for Atlanta."

Mr. Venable then presented the common school question in a clear, forcible way, showing the tax levy, and the proposition which Fulton gets and what the other counties derive. This was particularly interesting to the audience, and made him many friends. He showed Atlanta's part of the tax, and compared Fulton with the other counties in the district. His reference to the confederate veterans and widows and the work he had done for them was roundly applauded. He showed conclusively to those who heard him that he had been abused by his opponents.

Mr. Venable's speech was one which pleased those who heard it, and made for him many friends.

Hon. Frank P. Rice spoke for ten minutes, urging the people of Fulton to vote for Venable.

Hon. W. D. Ellis followed Mr. Rice, producing conclusive arguments to those present that Mr. Venable should be elected.

Then came Colonel A. H. Cox, who, with his eloquence and usual vigor, pushed Mr. Venable's cause, showing the worth, merit and ability of the candidate.

Mr. W. C. Glenn made a warm speech in favor of Mr. Venable.

Mr. Douglas closed the speaking in a warm, hearty talk for the democratic nominee.

THROUGH THE CITY.

HE IS BETTER.—Mr. J. T. Lofton's many friends will be glad to learn that he is rapidly recovering from his recent severe illness.

THE MORROW TICKET.—There was a meeting of the friends of the Morrow sheriff ticket last night at the headquarters of the executive committee on South Broad street. The race for sheriff bids fair to become an interesting card in the local political deck. Things are beginning to stir up.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE.—The Sons of Temperance have fitted up a hall at 75½ Whitehall street, where they meet every Thursday night. During the Piedmont exposition it is proposed to hold a reunion of the members of the society. There are quite a number, who belonged to the organization in ante-bellum times. Atlanta division has appointed as a committee of arrangements, W. G. Whidby, J. O. Perkins and J. W. Kreeger.

A FLOAL EXCHANGE.—The subject of establishing a floral exchange, in this city, for the sale of cut flowers and pot plants, will be discussed at the meeting of the Atlanta Horticultural Society this morning. There will be a display of grapes also that will astonish the natives.

WORKING FOR DIRECT TRADE.—Secretary Whidby, of the direct trade convention, is busy sending out the official proceedings of that body to the state grange, state alliance, state agricultural societies and commercial organizations in the southern states. Indications point, he says, to an attendance of over 300 delegates at the next convention.

THE HUMANE SOCIETIES.—The fourteenth annual session of the American Humane Association will be held in Nashville, Tenn., October 22d, 23d and 24th. Each humane society or society for the prevention of cruelty to animals will be represented by Rev. G. L. Chaney, Sidney Root, J. S. Panchen, A. B. Carrier, W. G. Whidby and R. Searrett. It is expected that there will be a large attendance.

THEY ARE HAPPY.—Mr. Ferdinand E. DeBray was in the city yesterday. Mr. DeBray is one of the most efficient of court bailiffs in his district—East Point—where he is well and favorably known.

A short time ago Mr. DeBray was wedded to Miss N. F. Reynolds, and at the same time his sister, Miss Aine DeBray, was united in marriage to Mr. J. T. Reynolds, Rev. Mr. Emery of the East Point Methodist church, performed the ceremony, and the two young couples are living very happily at their homes in East Point.

WELL KNOWN IN ATLANTA.—Mr. Will R. Owen, who is a member of the "Under the Gaslight" Company, which will be in Atlanta Friday and Saturday, is well known here. Two years ago he spent the summer in Atlanta, and while here made many warm friends. Mr. Owen, who has for several years been with Kheca, is one of the brightest and cleverest young men on the stage, and he will be given a hearty reception upon his return this season.

Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky., showed his love for little children when he invented those dainty little candies he named Dr. Bull's Worms. They are a treat for the children, but it's death to the worms.

THE EXPOSITION.

THE DIRECTORS HAVE AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING.

They Talk About the Great Fair—Race Horses and Cowboys, Indians and Great Statesmen Coming.

The exposition directors had an enthusiastic meeting last night.

Much of the time was consumed in detail work about the affairs of the exposition in a business way, but there were some lively discussions on the various departments that were of general interest and importance.

Owing to the rain, much of the committee work was postponed until the next meeting of the directors, the chairman of the various committees being absent last night.

The directors talked about the work to be done on the buildings in the way of putting in the displays, and about the great fair generally, with an interest unswerving, and it is clear that nothing will be left undone on their part in behalf of the exposition, within the few brief days before the opening.

The racing and stock departments now claim the attention of the managers.

There have been several fine races already sent out to the stables, coming from some of the most noted stock farms in the west.

The stalls will be well filled with blooded horses and the races this year will be the finest that have ever been run on the track at Piedmont park.

Within a week or ten days Pawnee Bill will come from Baltimore with his gang of Indians and cowboys. They will be in Atlanta nearly a week before the exposition opens, arranging their wild west show, pitching their tents, and getting in shape for their wonderful performances.

The exhibitors are beginning to arrive and are putting down part of their displays every day out at the grounds, in the main building and machinery hall.

Messages from fifteen or twenty of the finest military companies in the United States give the assurance of their presence on the grounds to take part in the interstate championship drills that have been arranged.

ARRANGING THE PROGRAMME.

The directors are at work making out a full programme for the entire exposition.

This will be done at an early day, and will be published in due time to let the people see in one vast list the many attractions of the exposition.

The work of getting up the programme has been retarded unavoidably, the dates of several features not having been satisfactorily fixed.

Mayor John T. Glenn is now in Washington in behalf of the invitation committee, arranging a date for Mr. Blaine's visit to the exposition.

Mr. Blaine talks most favorably about coming, and there seems to be no doubt about his visit to Atlanta.

Colonel W. L. Glessner is now in Ohio and the northeast, and is getting up several great excursions of northern men and women to come to the exposition.

Two more weeks and Atlanta will be alive with the festivity of the greatest show ever seen in the south.

It begins October 15th.

His First Anniversary.

Today Mr. J. F. Faber, the well-known photographer, celebrates the first anniversary of the establishment of his business in Atlanta, and he celebrates it under most auspicious circumstances. A year ago Faber was practically unknown; today the gallery which bears his name is one of the best known in Georgia, and so good has been his business that he now finds the capacity of his establishment crowded to the limit. The secret of his success lies in the excellence of his work, and today he enjoys the distinction of being one of the first photographers of the south.

WAS A SELL.

A Mysterious Valise Which Was Brought to the Station House.

Policeman Evans had the joke on him yesterday.

Some fun-loving youth had put an old valise on the patrolman's beat, near the corner of Peachtree and Walton streets. The valise was tightly closed and was quite weighty, apparently containing clothing or other articles of bulk at least if not value.

The patrolman gathered the valise up, and after inquiring through the vicinity for the owner, he finally shouldered it and patrolled to the station house, where he deposited it and asked the station house keeper for a receipt.

Before the receipt for the valuable find was given the valise was opened for examination.

When the valise was laid open the patrolman's feeling of satisfaction at the public service he had performed gave way to embarrassment and disappointment.

It contained a neatly packed load of rocks, bones, bottles, old rags and trash of every description and condition of decay.

QUEEN AND CRESCENT.

A GREAT THOROUGHFARE FOR THE SOUTHERN PEOPLE.

A Splendidly Equipped Road, Admirably Managed—The Great Work It Is Doing in Developing the South.

The Queen and Crescent.

Who is it that does not like to travel over the lines of this system? It seems that any one fond of railroad traveling would be delighted at a journey from Chattanooga to Cincinnati, or from New Orleans to Chattanooga. The road is in admirable fix and the trains are always on schedule time. Probably no road in the southern states runs through a more productive country, or has so much beautiful scenery by it. It is this fact that has made famous the Cincinnati Southern branch of this system.

The Queen and Crescent system is one of the largest in the southern states. It embraces Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific railway, amounting to 330 miles; Alabama Great Southern railway, amounting to 125 miles; New Orleans and Northeastern railway, amounting to 106 miles; Alabama and Vicksburg railway, amounting to 125 miles; Vicksburg and Gulf railway, amounting to 180 miles, the grand total mileage being 1,166 miles. It is a splendidly equipped system, managed by some of the best railroad men in this country. Mr. D. G. Edwards is the general passenger and ticket agent for the Cincinnati Southern system. He has the supervision of the entire system in this department. Mr. Edwards, a young man, exceptionally under thirty-five years of age, is a faithful worker, being backed with good judgment and a level head, risen to the exalted position of holding on to this system. The management of the passenger department is due to his management.

The southern people are very much gratified at the manner in which the Queen and Crescent treats them, especially in the passenger department. There is no more beautiful route to see than over the Queen and Crescent by the way of Cincinnati. Its coaches are indeed palaces on wheels. Every convenience has been provided, and if there is any luxury in traveling, it is surely over this route. The southern people during the past season have patronized the Cincinnati Southern division of this system very extensively going and coming from the watering places in the north and east. It is predicted that next season the travel over this line will be greatly increased.

A short and quick line to New Orleans, where direct connection is made with the Southern Pacific and Texas and Pacific railways, for Galveston, Houston, San Antonio, Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, Dallas, Marshall, Jefferson, Paris and all points in California and Mexico. Also short and quick line to Meridian, Vicksburg and Shreveport, where connection is made for all points in Texas, Mexico and California, New Mexico, Colorado and the west.

It, only sixteen hours from Atlanta to Cincinnati, where connection is made in Central union depot for all points in the northwest, north and east. St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Canada, New York and New England points.

Take this chance this year for cheap excursion tickets. The Queen and Crescent route on October 14th, will sell at one fare round trip tickets to all points in Texas and Arkansas. Tickets will be good thirty days from date of sale, good to stop off. This cheap excursion gotten up for the benefit of house seekers, all parties who expect to go west had better take advantage of this last excursion. The most generally useful medicine is Ayer's Pills. As a remedy for the various diseases of the stomach, liver, and bowels, these Pills have no equal. Their sugar-coating causes them not only to be easy and pleasant to take, but preserves their medicinal integrity in all climates and for any reasonable length of time. The best family medicine, Ayer's Pills are, also, unsurpassed for the use of travelers, soldiers, sailors, campers, and pioneers. Some of the most critical cases, when all other remedies have failed, prove effective.
